Dan and Virginia Frenzel worked as a team to inspire many students to realize their career dreams in natural resource management at Macalester College and the University of Minnesota from 1950 -1984. Dan and Virginia were married during WW II when Dan served as a US Navy corpsman on several island campaigns in the Pacific Theater. Dan completed his early college education at North Texas State Teachers College in 1947 and received his PhD in Fish and Wildlife Management from the University of Minnesota in 1957. Virginia became a licensed nurse during the war.

Many of Dan's students moved on to leadership positions with various state and federal conservation agencies, universities and medical facilities around the United States.

Bald eagle research, conducted by Dr. Frenzel and his students, helped in the recovery of eagle populations in the 1970s and 1980s when bald eagles were listed as endangered species.

Dan and Virginia's humility and kindness to others will always be remembered. They both cherished wild places and this Wildlife Management Area stands as a lasting tribute to their contributions to natural resource conservation in Minnesota and to our nation.
